

I am truly appalled by Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to require its stations to air a very slanted anti-Kerry "documentary" in the guise of news, days before the election. This sort of tactic is an abuse of the public interest that a media company is required to serve, and a clear example of the dangers of allowing one individual large company to control the airwaves in many areas. If the FCC has any teeth at all, I urge you to take whatever steps are necessary to prevent "Stolen Honor" from being aired prior to the election, or, alternatively, to require that equal time be made available, in an equally attractive time slot, for a program that presents the other side of the picture, such as "Going Upriver."

If the Sinclair Broadcasting Group persists in trying to exert its power to skew the upcoming elections, I urge that requests by its stations to renew their licenses be denied.

Thank you for your consideration.
